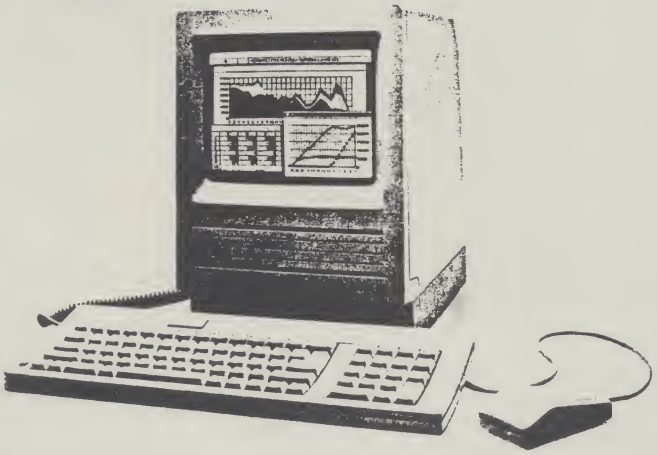
Introducing
The New Macintosh SE
From Apple® and MacServices. . .



The Macintosh SE takes the Macintosh Plus a step further by offering expansion options required for many mainstream applications – without sacrificing compact design. Add a large monitor, or an MS-DOS coprocessor card to run your IBM programs– just for example.

The new Macintosh SE is available in two models, so you can choose the type of storage you need most. The entry-level Macintosh SE comes standard with two built in 800K disk drives. The hard disk Macintosh SE comes with one built-in 800K disk drive and a Macintosh Internal 20SC Hard Disk–to give you fast access to a complete, self-contained mass storage system. And the Macintosh SE is compatible with existing Macintosh hardware and software.
